INTRODUCTION

History education in Singapore seeks to develop in students an appreciation of past human experiences, critical awareness of the nature of historical knowledge, and the ability to make connections between the past and present. In a world where attention is often divided between concerns over the present and the future, the relevance of History is often questioned. Learning to manage the present and anticipate the future would not be possible without knowing the past.

History prepares students to thrive as citizens in a complex and fast-changing world by equipping them with the knowledge and skills to understand how forces, events and developments of the past shaped today's world. It also develops in students a disciplined and critical mind to discern and make informed judgements based on consideration of multiple perspectives, reasoned and well-substantiated conclusions. History also helps students to participate actively in a globalised world, as they learn to make sense of ambiguous and complex global developments, appreciate local contexts and engage with different cultures and societies sensitively. These are encapsulated in the seven qualities of a history learner which the History curriculum aims to develop:

AIMS

The Upper Secondary History syllabus reflects the value placed on the study of history by seeking to:

- engage students actively in historical inquiry so as to develop them into confident, self-directed, critical and reflective thinkers
- enable students to acquire knowledge and understanding of how the past has been interpreted, represented and accorded significance for different reasons and purposes
- develop an inquisitive mind in students with the ability to ask relevant questions about the past and examine a range of sources critically in their historical context to reach substantiated judgements about the past
- develop in students the ability to organise and communicate their historical knowledge and understanding through a variety of ways using different media
- equip them with the necessary historical knowledge, understanding, dispositions and skills to understand the present and contribute actively and responsibly as local and global citizens
- inspire them to further study and the pursue their personal interest in the past.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Knowledge and Understanding

At the end of the course, students should be able to demonstrate their knowledge and understanding of:

- History as a construct – History is constructed from evidence and there are different interpretations of historical events
- the key characteristics of the periods studied – this includes the social, economic, cultural and political contexts of the societies studied and the experiences of the peoples who lived in these societies at that point in time
- the interconnections between individuals, societies, events and developments studied and those in the present day
- key individuals, groups, forces, events and ideas that shaped the development of the political, social and cultural contexts of our world today
- the process of change by showing change and/or development within and across the periods of study.

Skills

Students should be able to employ the following skills to demonstrate their knowledge and understanding:

- establishing historical patterns and relevance to the present
- comparing different aspects of the periods, events and issues studied to establish change and continuity
- analysing and evaluating causation (cause and effect) of historical events and situations whilst avoiding abstract generalisations
- assessing and establishing the significance of individuals, ideas, events, forces and developments on societies
- identifying points of view in History through distinguishing bias, fact and opinion in history writing
- analysing, evaluating and synthesising historical information from a variety of media to make informed conclusions
- organising and communicating historical knowledge and understanding in a coherent way.

Values and Attitudes

Students should also be able to demonstrate the core values and mindsets associated with history learning when they:

- show sensitivity to how people's values and beliefs shape their interpretations of events, issues or developments in any specific time and space
- are aware of how cultural, intellectual and emotional contexts shape the thinking, value systems, decisions and actions of different peoples and groups in different times and places
- show openness to and respect for diverse, and sometimes opposing viewpoints
- empathise with people from different social, cultural, economic and political backgrounds
- modify and adapt their thinking and actions according to multiple sources of information, perspectives and different circumstances, guided by core values
- are able to handle ambiguity and pose relevant questions to conduct further investigation independently
- identify and embrace connections between themselves and the larger community (past and present) and realise that their actions impact others, thus promoting a commitment to improving the community and country
- make judgements on historical events and determine the ways in which they can respond to these events guided by the core values.

ASSESSMENT OBJECTIVES

Candidates should be able to:

Objective 1: Deploy Knowledge

- select, organise and use relevant historical knowledge in context.

Objective 2: Construct Explanation and Communicate Historical Knowledge

- analyse and explain historical events and periods studied using key historical concepts (causation and consequence, change and continuity, significance).

Objective 3: Interpret and Evaluate Source Materials

- interpret, evaluate and use a range of sources as evidence in their historical context through:
  - comprehending and extracting relevant information
  - drawing inferences from given information
  - comparing and contrasting different views
  - distinguishing between facts, opinion and judgement
  - recognising values and detecting bias
  - establishing utility of given information
  - drawing conclusions based on a reasoned consideration of evidence and arguments.

SCHEME OF ASSESSMENT

Assessment Specification Grid

Assessment Objectives	Paper 1 (weighting)	Paper 2 (weighting)
AO1 + AO2	20%	20%
AO1 + AO3	30%	30%
Total	50%	50%

Note: AO1 forms part of the testing of AO2 and AO3.

Assessment Format

The examination consists of two papers – Paper 1 and Paper 2, taken at separate sittings. The duration of each paper is 1 hour 50 minutes. Each paper is assessed by a source-based case study and essay questions.

Paper 1: Extension of European control in Southeast Asia and challenges to European dominance, 1870s–1942
Section A: Source-Based Case Study (30%) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Maximum of 5 sources</li> <li>Q1(a)–(e): source-based questions (AO1 + AO3)</li> </ul>	30m
Section B: Essay Questions (20%) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Answer 2 out of 3 questions set (AO1 + AO2)</li> <li>The questions require candidates to analyse and explain historical events and/or issues</li> <li>Each question carries 10 marks</li> </ul>	20m
Total marks for Paper 1	50m

Paper 2: Developments in the post-World War II world: The Cold War and decolonisation in Southeast Asia, 1940s–1991
Section A: Source-Based Case Study (30%) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Maximum of 5 sources</li> <li>Q1(a)–(e): source-based questions (AO1 + AO3)</li> </ul>	30m
Section B: Essay Questions (20%) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Answer 2 out of 3 questions set (AO1 + AO2)</li> <li>The questions require candidates to analyse and explain historical events and/or issues</li> <li>Each question carries 10 marks</li> </ul>	20m
Total marks for Paper 2	50m

Section A: Source-Based Case Study

Candidates are required to answer the compulsory source-based case study. The topics for the source-based case study are prescribed and indicated by the symbol (*) in the syllabus content. Candidates are expected to have a sound knowledge of the prescribed units and an understanding of the ways in which sources may be evaluated.

A maximum of five sources may be set for the source-based case study. No individual source will exceed 120 words. One or more differing accounts of the same topic or issue might be set, showing different views as time progresses or in communicating to different audiences. Sources may be simplified where necessary.

Each source-based case study will have five sub-questions, testing Objectives 1 and 3. The first four sub-questions will test specific sources. The fifth sub-question will require candidates to use the evidence in multiple sources to demonstrate the skills of analysis, explanation and judgement for an issue related to the topic assessed in the source-based case study. The weighting for each sub-question will be indicated in brackets. A 'Levels of Response Mark Scheme' (LORMs) will be used to assess candidates' answers.

Section B: Essay Questions

Candidates are required to answer 2 out of 3 questions set. The questions will test Objectives 1 and 2 and require candidates to analyse and explain events and/or issues. Each question is worth a total of 10 marks. The questions will be marked using the 'Levels of Response Mark Scheme' (LORMs).

Questions will be set on any issue/topic within the units in the syllabus except for the issue assessed in the source-based case study in Section A in the same year of examination.

SYLLABUS CONTENT

The revised syllabus seeks to develop in students an understanding of how the present world system came into being and the interconnectedness of nation states and peoples. This understanding is important for our students to function as effective citizens and participants in the 21st century. The syllabus is framed by a metanarrative that enables students to acquire an understanding of the key forces and events that shaped the history of the late 19th to 20th century. Students will examine the changing context of world politics and the different responses of individuals and groups to these developments at the local, regional and global levels. They will evaluate the consequences and impact of the decisions and actions taken by individuals and states. Through studying the key developments of colonisation, the rise of authoritarian regimes, World War II, the Cold War and decolonisation, students will be better equipped to comprehend and explain contemporary developments in the region and the world today.

AMPLIFICATION OF SYLLABUS DETAILS

Paper 1: Extension of European control in Southeast Asia and challenges to European dominance, 1870s–1942
Focus This paper focuses on the key events and forces that shaped the world order from 1870s to the outbreak of World War II. It examines how the extension of colonial rule in Southeast Asia shaped the development of different Southeast Asian states like Malaya, Indonesia and Vietnam. Students will also examine the interactions between the locals and colonial powers, in particular, how the locals responded, challenged and managed the extension of European control in Southeast Asia. The paper also examines the key forces and developments that shaped the post-World War I world, including the attempts at collective security, the rise of authoritarian regimes in Nazi Germany and Militarist Japan, and the developments that led to the outbreak of World War II in Europe and the Asia-Pacific.	Making Connections An understanding of European colonisation in Southeast Asia will help students to make sense of the colonial imprints they see in the society and the region they live in today, and appreciate the ingenuity and resilience of the people in the region. The study of the impact of World War I and II, League of Nations and the rise of authoritarian regimes will also allow students to recognise that the interests and ambitions of individuals and nations can have significant consequences on societies and the world and recognise the need for and importance of international cooperation and collective security to prevent future conflicts.

Paper 2: Developments in the post-World War II world: The Cold War and decolonisation in Southeast Asia, 1940s–1991

Focus

This paper continues to trace the development of the shifting world order after World War II. Students will look specifically at the Cold War by examining the confrontation between the United States of America (USA) and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics (USSR), and their emergence as superpowers during this period. They also examine the causes and consequences of this rivalry on Europe and Asia. The paper also explores the forces, developments and actors that shaped the decolonisation and the emergence of independent nations in Southeast Asia, and examines the interplay of Cold War tensions and local politics in the 1950s–1970s.

Making Connections

An understanding of the key developments of the Cold War and the decolonisation and establishment of independent states in Southeast Asia will enable students to make sense of the Southeast Asian region and world today. Through the study, students will also recognise that decisions and actions of individuals made in specific contexts can lead to momentous changes and have consequences on people and countries. This will in turn allow them to better relate and respond to present-day issues of geopolitical significance.
