Section 1 of the paper is designed to assess students' ability to provide and exchange information, and express personal ideas through writing texts in Arabic, in the form of, for example, a short note, a message, an email or a personal note. Students are required to answer one of two questions by responding to a brief scenario, an instruction or a stimulus text with or without visuals and are expected to write a response of 50–70 words.

Section 2 of the paper is designed to assess students' ability to express personal ideas and opinions, recount an episode or event, and describe plans, through writing a text in Arabic. Students are required to answer one of three questions. The questions set may require students to respond to a picture or a series of pictures, write a descriptive text or a narrative. Students are expected to write a minimum of 170 words.

The use of a monolingual dictionary without any annotations is allowed for this paper.

This paper is made up of two sections:

Section 1: Reading Comprehension (25 marks)

Section 2: Language Usage (5 marks)

Section 1 of the paper is made up of Part A and Part B.

Part A is designed to assess students' understanding of written Arabic. For Part A, students are required to read and comprehend a text with graphic(s) and provide answers to multiple choice questions. The text with graphic(s) could include, for example, an advertisement, itinerary, promotion, information chart, brochure, TV guide, web page, recipe, menu, etc.

For Part B, students are required to read and comprehend a narrative, descriptive or expository text (approximately 200 words) and to answer open-ended questions. This part of the paper will also have multiple choice questions testing vocabulary based on the passage.
